POSTKARTE

The New Tack. It is a solemn moment in the life of the small farmer when the lease of his farm has run out and a new lease—or "tack"—must be drawn up. The Laird's factor wants to raise the rent, arguing that the farm is of much higher value than it was ten or twenty years ago—the farmer proves conclusively that the increased value is entirely due to his labour. Presently both will give way a little, they will wet the bargain, and the new "tack" will be granted.

Better weather
next week, I hope.
Jack has gone to Newcastle Races, so
he's got an extra.
I have been working this afternoon, & catch me off. I think I have had enough
